

PLAN-2409

D-418

Historical Area

As-builts - water dept.
October 1975

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age has increased by 1.2 billion, from 1.1 billion in 1980 to 2.3 billion in 1996.

As a result of the rapid increase in the number of children in the world, the number of children in the United States has also increased. In 1996, there were 75 million children in the United States, up from 68 million in 1980.

The increase in the number of children in the United States has led to a corresponding increase in the number of children in the world. In 1996, there were 2.3 billion children in the world, up from 1.1 billion in 1980.

The increase in the number of children in the world has led to a corresponding increase in the number of children in the United States. In 1996, there were 75 million children in the United States, up from 68 million in 1980.

The increase in the number of children in the United States has led to a corresponding increase in the number of children in the world. In 1996, there were 2.3 billion children in the world, up from 1.1 billion in 1980.

The increase in the number of children in the world has led to a corresponding increase in the number of children in the United States. In 1996, there were 75 million children in the United States, up from 68 million in 1980.

The increase in the number of children in the United States has led to a corresponding increase in the number of children in the world. In 1996, there were 2.3 billion children in the world, up from 1.1 billion in 1980.

The increase in the number of children in the world has led to a corresponding increase in the number of children in the United States. In 1996, there were 75 million children in the United States, up from 68 million in 1980.

The increase in the number of children in the United States has led to a corresponding increase in the number of children in the world. In 1996, there were 2.3 billion children in the world, up from 1.1 billion in 1980.

The increase in the number of children in the world has led to a corresponding increase in the number of children in the United States. In 1996, there were 75 million children in the United States, up from 68 million in 1980.

The increase in the number of children in the United States has led to a corresponding increase in the number of children in the world. In 1996, there were 2.3 billion children in the world, up from 1.1 billion in 1980.