The Commission on the City of New York, created by the City of New York in 1975, has the honor to submit to you this report on its findings and recommendations. The Commission was established to study the problems of the City of New York and to make recommendations for their solution. It has held numerous public hearings and has received many suggestions from the public. It has also conducted extensive research and has held many meetings with city officials and other interested parties. The Commission believes that the City of New York is facing a number of serious problems, and it believes that these problems can be solved by the adoption of the recommendations contained in this report. The Commission's recommendations are based on the following principles: (1) the City of New York should be a more efficient and effective government; (2) the City of New York should be a more equitable and just society; (3) the City of New York should be a more beautiful and livable place; and (4) the City of New York should be a more responsible and accountable government. The Commission's recommendations are designed to achieve these goals and to improve the quality of life in the City of New York. The Commission believes that these recommendations are essential for the City of New York to become a more successful and vibrant city. It urges the City of New York to adopt these recommendations as soon as possible. The Commission also wishes to express its appreciation to the many individuals and organizations that have assisted it in its work. It is particularly grateful to the many members of the public who have participated in its hearings and who have provided it with so many valuable suggestions. It is also grateful to the many city officials and other interested parties who have provided it with so much helpful information and advice. The Commission believes that the City of New York is a great city, and it believes that it can become an even greater city if it adopts the recommendations contained in this report. It urges the City of New York to take the necessary steps to implement these recommendations and to make the City of New York a more successful and vibrant city for all its residents.
